Gary (Ganesh) Loke is an innovative business entrepreneur from Parramatta running his IT- development, marketing and a film production company based in Sydney. He is producing a Bollywood movie- 'Sarfaroshi...the war against system' which will be released in few months in Australia and worldwide. Gary has also developed an innovative web site called 'YouPromoTube.com' to promote & help the local small businesses in marketing. This web site was appreciated by the local state member of NSW Parliament Mr. Issa.

Gary have a vast experience and background in IT and training industry in Australia. He has got degrees in IT and Education from Charles Sturt University in Australia. Then after graduating from Australian University he has worked in IT, training & marketing industry in Sydney. He has established his IT consultancy & IT training business, and has also worked for the NSW Education Department in IT training.

Gary is active in the social work in Sydney's south-west region. He has been helping many needy people to get jobs, accommodation etc.

With his unique, broad and innovative vision Gary have entered into active politics to help the local families & serve their interests. He was disappointed with Labor government's tax policies such as carbon tax, and the rising electricity, gas & food prices which are crippling the local Australian families.

Gary was also concerned because of the failing state of our hospitals which don't have enough beds to accommodate new patients, lack of funding for our schools and Universities. Despite this, Australian government spends hundreds of millions
